

In-house Training

In-house training can be a cost-effective alternative to DGT classroom training. Classroom and can be delivered at your premises for groups of 10 or more, at a time most convenient to you. This approach allows focused engagement on issues that impact your organization. The key advantage is that larger internal groups can be brought on board through training addressing their specific challenges or objectives. An initial discussion, while understanding your needs, helps the product manager and the assigned instructor to create specific case studies or adjust to the material to provide a customized solution. You can choose any existing classroom course for in-house delivery or request a customized solution based on your training needs.

Benefits

- Receive quality instruction from IATA Instructors and staff at the location of your choice
- Customize courses when required
- Transfer skills quickly to your entire team
- Save on travel and training costs

How to request

Complete the request form below, indicating the subject area and course in which you are interested. A specialist will work with you to find a training solution best suited to your company.

Expect to receive a quote within five to seven business days of your request. Training can then be delivered at your company as quickly as four weeks after a training solution has been determined.
